Cheque Policy

Most Ellora members choose to pay for their purchases with personal cheques, which we are happy to accept. Cheques are deposited on the day you receive your goods or on the next business day, and must be current to the date you receive your goods. In very exceptional circumstances we may agree to accept a post-dated cheque, but will levy a $15 surcharge to do so, and you must clear this arrangement with us before you place your order.

If a cheque is refused by the bank because there are insufficient funds in your account, you will be responsible for providing the full amount owing plus a $25 NSF fee (to cover our additional banking costs) in cash to Ellora within 48 hours of us notifying you of the returned cheque. If a second cheque is refused by the bank at any time, the same policy will apply, with the additional caveat that all subsequent orders you place must be paid for by cash or PayPal.
